

Located in beautiful North Georgia, North Georgia Still Company is a family owned and operated business. Jeff Warneke still proudly serves active duty in the Georgia Army National Guard, based out of Dahlonega, GA. Andrew Warneke oversees the daily operations, while managing the shop. Spencer Warneke assists with operations. Andrew and Spencer, both masters of their craft, have helped to cultivate the quality of the NGSC brand to where it is today.

At our core, NGSC believes in serving every customer as if they were part of our family. We set our mission: To build the best still available on the commercial market, and back it up with a company whose service is second to none. We believe providing great distillation equipment is only half of the equation. We also want all our customers to be successful with their equipment, and that means providing exceptional customer service, a quality which truly sets us apart.

Our family takes great pride in providing North Georgia Still Company products to you, and we look forward to honoring our promise of quality products and quality service for generations to come. Welcome to the Family!
